LAST JUNIOR COUNCIL LECTURE
TO BE GIVEN WEDNESDAY NOV. 17

The last of the Junior Council lectures at The Cleveland Museum of Art will be given Wednesday, November 17 at 8:30 p.m. Milton S. Fox, editor of Harry N. Abrams publishing company in New York, will talk about THE POST-WAR EXPLOSION IN AMERICA. His discussion will examine the last phase of American painting, the theme of the six weeks' lecture series.

Originally a Clevelander, Mr. Fox worked on the staffs of the Museum, the Institute of Art and Western Reserve University. He also was art critic for the Cleveland NEWS. He has published two books and many articles on art, and recently was consultant to NBC for the television production of "The Louvre, Golden Prison".

Mr. Fox studied at the Cleveland School of Art, the Academie Julian in Paris and at Western Reserve University where he earned his M.A. degree. He has executed dozens of commissioned portraits and has exhibited in Cleveland's May Show.
